

Rehm's season ready to start again

About 4 months after the last race in February for Round 2 of the WSK Super Master Series, Maxim Rehm is ready to return to racing and will do so next week at the Adria Karting Raceway.

This forthcoming week will be among the hardest ever in the karting world, since it will include two events in 6 days, namely the last two acts of the WSK Super Master Series which had been stopped by Covid-19.

On the track located in the province of Rovigo, Rehm made his debut with the colors of the Tony Kart Racing Team in OKJ. His growth path with the Brescia-based team was then interrupted by Covid-19, although the German has not been idle; once the tracks reopened he has spent several days training in Ampfing, Wackersdorf, Kerpen, Mulsen and Lonato.

Maxim Rehm, Tony Kart Racing Team (Tony Kart/Vortex): "This will be one of the most demanding weeks of my career; two races in one .. It will be essential not to make mistakes. I'm really looking forward to starting again and finally putting this very difficult period for everyone behind me."

The race program includes Monday 29th completely dedicated to free practice. On the 30th, the qualifying and heats of the two rounds will begin. Saturday 4 will be the day of the Prefinals and Finals of Round 3, while Round 4 ends on Sunday.
