Lonato del Garda (Brescia - Italy). The fourth round of the WSK Master Series – last round of the International Series after the previous rounds held in La Conca, Sarno and Precenicco – will take place this weekend at the Circuit 7 Laghi of Castelletto di Branduzzo. Virtually all titles of the category are still to be decided, but the dices seem to be drawn in most of them, as in KZ2 where CRG's works driver Max Verstappen is ready to celebrate his third title of season 2013 after already securing the European KZ and the WSK Euro Series KZ1.

VERSTAPPEN HEADING TO THE THIRD TITLE. In KZ2 the advantage accumulated by Max Verstappen is quite consistent and the objective of obtaining the third title of the season seems to be at reach of the young Dutch driver that is coming from the success in the European KZ Championship and from the victory in the WSK Euro Series KZ1.

In the WSK Master Series' standings Verstappen is leading at 171 points, 77 clear of Negro and 78 of Hajek, when 85 points are still to be awarded in Castelletto.

OFFICIAL CRG PARTNERS

The margin is quite solid and has been built by the CRG driver with a constant pace on top, starting from the double win in the season opener in La Conca and the two placings in Sarno, followed by the double podium in Precenicco with another win and a second place.

The magic moment of Max Verstappen in his first year in the category with the shift helped by quite an unbeatable and performing CRG chassis and a TM engine perfectly prepared by Jos Verstappen, does not allow for much space to the rivals.

In Castelletto, CRG works team will also take on track the Japanese driver Fuma Horio in KF, where the classification is dominated by Dorian Boccolacci, that is in turn very close to the title.

In KF Junior the games have already been closed in favour of Alessio Lorandi, who already secured the title in the latest race held in Precenicco.

In the smaller category 60 Mini, another driver on a CRG chassis is on top of the category for team Gamoto Racing: the young Spaniard Eliseo Martinez gets to Castelletto with very good chances in the title quest. The advantage enjoyed by Martinez amounts to 42 points to Kush Maini, thanks to the double win in Precenicco and the double podium in the opening race of Sarno where he secured a first and second place.
